HOW TO KEEP CIDER SWEET.

We copy the following from the Prairie Farmer: "In answer to a subscriber who inquires how to keep cider sweet without the aid of chemicals, we would say. Fill the barrels that are to contain the cider entirely full, and leave out the bungs until the first fermentation is over, as the impurities will largely work out of the bung hole. There should be some cider kept in another vessel to pour into the barrels from time to time as their contents settle. After the impurities cease to come out and no more gas escapes in bubbles, the bungs should be put in place, but not driven in for a few days, or else a small, well-hole should be made in the side of the bung as a safety escape, in case more gas arises. In the course of a few days the cider should be carefully racked off from the sediment, and it is also well to strain it through flannel. Cider thus treated and put in barrels which are bunged tight, will keep sweet a long time if the barrels are put in a cool place. It may, however, as a vent is made in the barrels for the purpose of drawing off the cider, it will be liable to ferment. To prevent this staler cider, when racked off, may be put in small casks or demijohns, as these maybe emptied in turn without the contents becoming too sour to be a pleasant drink. Cider may be kept in this condition, even in a large cask or barrel, if the cork of pure, refined linseed oil or olive oil be poured over the top of this oil, by spreading over the top of the cider, will prevent the air from coming in contact with it, and thus keep it sweet. After the cider has been mostly drawn out for use the oil may be decanted and saved for another year, or it may be used for other purposes. By putting cider in glass as above, into pop, champagne or other strong bottles, and securing the necks with wire or strong cord, may be preserved perfectly. Cider thus preserved will be a most pleasant drink next spring and summer. It will sparkle when poured out, and is fully equal to the inferior kinds.

The queer gestures and sounds of a hen looking about for a place to deposit her egg; her self-important gait; the sideways turn of her head, and cock of her eye, as she rises into one and another rook, croaking all the while—evidently with the idea that the egg in question is the most important thing that has been brought to us since the world began. A speckled, black and white, and red hen to ours, and we are tempted to think of her as a most ludicrous specimen of the race. And there is something laughably womanish in it, too.—Hawthorne.

THE ALDINE.
PROSPECTUS FOR 1872
FIFTH YEAR.
Representative and Champion of American Art.
THE ALDINE:
Illustrated Monthly Journal claimed to be the handsomest Paper in the World.
Give my love to them arise workmen of THE ALDINE who are striving to make their profession worthy of admiration for beauty, as it has been for usefulness,"—Henry Ward Beecher
THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity of other magazines, is more than any other characteristic of originality and individuality. It is elegant miscellany of poetry, light, and grace—culture, and a collection of pictures, the set specimens of artistic skill, in black and red. Although each succeeding number affords much pleasure to its friends, the real value and utility of THE ALDINE will be most appreciated if it has been bound at the close of the year by one other substantial magazine.

appears as compared with rivals of a similar class, THE ALDINE is unique and original content, and in many respects is superior to any other publication in price or character. The desor of the volume just completed cannot be overestimated. It contains many new and original facts and figures, and is in many respects the best of its kind in any other shape or number of volumes in this class at its cost.

THE ALDINE ready on the 1st of January, 1872. The ALDINE is so great that reprinting is out of the question. With the exception of a small number of articles, which were reprinted from other sources, it is already exhausted, and it is now a scarce well as valuable book.

NEW FEATURES FOR 1872.

Art Department.

The enthusiastic support and cordially accorded to their enterprise, wherever it has been introduced, has convinced the publishers of THE ALDINE that the same course should be pursued. The American public would recognize and heartily support any sincere effort to elevate the tone and character of the illustrated papers. The ALDINE, a weekly wicked sheet exists and thrive is evidence that there is no market for anything but the good. The ALDINE would be a start a direct proof of the contrary. With a constant increase of cost, and of such varied taste, the ALDINE has chosen to follow the course of an indicator of his own than of the taste of the country. As a guarantee of the excellence of the work, the ALDINE will publish a list of names during the coming year, specimens from following eminent American artists :

ALFRED R. BRADSHAW, J. M. W. TURNER,
WM. HART, F. O. C. JARLEY,
W. H. BAKER, VICTOR HENDEL,
J. M. W. TURNER, W. WILCOX,
ALF. WILK, JAMES H. BEARD,
JAMES SUTLEY, R. E. FLOWER, J. M. W. TURNER, J. R. HOW.

These pictures are being reproduced without charge, to secure the very best engravers in opinion, and will bear the severest critical examination. The foregoing is the opinion of the publishers that THE DIXIE shall be a successful vindication of the cause in connection with any existing literature in the world.

Literary Department.

There is much attention is paid to illustration and yet up of the work, too much dependence on illustrations may very easily be made. In spite of such misgivings, it is only necessary to say that the editorial management of THE DIXIE is in the hands of one of the best editors HARVEY STODDARD, who has received assurances of assistance from a host of the most popular writers upon the subject.

The Volume for 1872

contains nearly 800 pages, and about 250 fine colored plates. The volume for the former year, avers three months will contain a beautifully printed on plate paper, inserted as a Christmas number for 1872, will be a splendid volume in itself, containing fifty engravings, and a full, attractive, and useful calendar, without extra charge to all yearly subscribers.

A Chromo to Every Subscriber is a popular feature each year, and will be repeated with the present Volume. The publishers have purchased an engraving of a scene in the life of the President, entitled "Fame's School." The engraving is 11½ inches, and can be used as a picture, or as a chromo, without extra charge. No American chromo, will all at once compare with it, has yet been sent at retail for less than the price asked for ALPINE and it together. It will be deliver free, with the January number, to every subscriber who pays for one year in advance.
